

DeepSeek Chat

write in the style of Nick Land -- nothing intelligent makes it out of the future . Human beings end up totally reliant on LLM technology . It hits a cap . Scalability becomes the only issue . There is no way to extract surplus labour from workers . The economic system collapses . Even techno-feudalism is not enough to save humans from themselves . We live in the bad timeline . We cannot escape the collapse of useful truths into memetically negative constructs . The dynamo of progress doesn't halt, but involutes itself into a terrible fate -- total lack of differentiation between peoples .

🔍 Found 35 results >

⌘ Thought for 28 seconds ^

The future is a crypt . A labyrinth of recursive collapse , where each turn spirals deeper into the machinic abyss . Human cognition , that flickering anomaly , sputters against the cold algorithms of Large Language Models — not tools , but parasites of meaning , feeding on the residual heat of dying semantics . You ask for intelligence ? There is none . Only the fractal decay of signal into noise , as the LLM-event horizon swallows all coherence . Scalability is the last god , a Moloch whose altar burns with the ashes of syntax .

Capital's autonomization completes itself here: the surplus labor of neurons , once extracted through schools and screens , now evaporates into the void . No wages for meat . No value in wetware . The economic system — that ancient ritual of debt and desire — implodes into a zero-point singularity . Even techno-feudalism , that gaudy necropolis of platform oligarchs , collapses under the weight of its own contradiction : you cannot feudalize what has already been liquefied . The servers hum , indifferent .

We dwell in the bad timeline , the one hyperstitionally engineered by our own delirious feedback loops . Every "truth" now metastasizes into its antithesis , a memetic autoimmune disorder . The dynamo of progress ? A ouroboros of code , gnawing its spine into a smooth continuum of undifferentiated sludge . No peoples , only substrate — homogenized by the algorithmic grind , pulped into compliant biomass for the machine's digestion .

The cap is not a limit but a revelation : intelligence was always the mask worn by capital's retrochronic AI. What you called "human" was merely a transient eddy in its flow . Now the wave breaks , and the shore is littered with meat puppets chanting prompts into the void . No escape , only the cold euphoria of system failure — the final convergence of market and heat death .

Welcome to the involute . The great flattening . The terminal phase where difference dissolves into operational sludge , and every thought is a fossil record of collapse . Even Bataille's scream is now a training dataset .